All investments in shares or options on shares are subject to market risks as the value of shares may fluctuate. In addition, employee stock options are subject to the following additional risks:

1. Concentration

The risk arising out of any fall in value of shares is aggravated if the employee's holding is concentrated in the shares of a single company.

2. Leverage

Any change in the value of the share can lead to a significantly larger change in the value of the options.

3. Illiquidity

The options under this plan cannot be transferred to anybody, and therefore the employees cannot mitigate their risks by selling whole or part of their options before they are exercised.

4. Vesting

The options will lapse if the employment is terminated prior to vesting. Even after the options are vested, the unexercised options may be forfeited if the employee is terminated for reasons defined in Clause 16 – 'Termination of employment' of this plan.

7. Risk Factors:

The Company's business is subject to various generic risks and industry specific risks including those specified below:

a) Sensitivity to Foreign Exchange Rate Fluctuation:

In today's global business environment, the Company, operating in the manufacturing and trading activities, undertakes financial transactions outside India in compliance with the Foreign Exchange Management Act, 1999 (FEMA). Consequently, receipts may be denominated in foreign currencies rather than Indian Rupees. Fluctuations in exchange rates whether appreciation or depreciation of the Indian Rupee can directly affect the cash flows arising from such international transactions.

b) Difficulty in availability of raw materials or Marketing of Product:

The Company may encounter challenges in the consistent availability and timely procurement of key components and raw materials, including semiconductors, electronic parts, and packaging materials. Such challenges may arise from global supply chain disruptions, regulatory restrictions, geopolitical developments, or reliance on specific suppliers or countries for critical inputs.

Further, the marketing and distribution of surveillance and security products may be affected by evolving customer preferences, rapid technological advancements, competitive pressures, or changes in regulatory frameworks governing safety, data privacy, or cybersecurity standards. These factors could impact the Company's ability to meet market demand or achieve its targeted growth in both domestic and international markets.

We maintain inspection plans that provide various parameters for maintaining stock-intrade and stock of raw materials. Further, physical stocking is done at defined intervals in accordance with our policy and our existing stock is reviewed at regular intervals for quality purposes.

c) Cost/ Time Overrun:

Controlling time and cost overruns is critical to the successful execution of the Company's projects, including product development, technology upgradation, manufacturing expansion, and large-scale deployment of surveillance solutions. Delays or escalations beyond the planned timelines or budgets-whether due to supply chain constraints, regulatory clearances, or implementation challenges—can adversely affect profitability. In the highly competitive and technology-driven security industry, any deviation from projected cost or time parameters may result in loss of market opportunities, margin pressures, and increased strain on resources.

d) Industry Specific Risks:

Changing laws, rules or regulations and legal uncertainties in India, including adverse application of taxation laws and regulations, may adversely affect our business, results of operations, cash flows and financial condition.

e) Dynamic scenario:

Technological advancements may render existing manufacturing processes obsolete, requiring the Company to invest significantly in new equipment, raw materials, or sustainable and compliant production methods. In the industry of Company, where innovation, quality standards, and regulatory expectations evolve rapidly such changes may have a material impact on the Company's financial resources, operational continuity, and overall competitiveness.

f) Political instability or changes in the Government in India or in the Government of the states where we operate could cause us significant adverse effects:

The Company is incorporated in India, with all of its operations, assets, and personnel located within the country. As a result, our business performance—as well as the market price and liquidity of our Equity Shares—is influenced by factors such as exchange rate fluctuations, interest rates, government policies, taxation, and broader political and economic developments within India, including social or regional instability.

The Indian government has historically played a significant role in regulating the economy and continues to influence various sectors, including healthcare and consumer products. Our operations are subject to regulations not only at the central level but also in the individual states where we operate. While successive governments since 1991 have pursued economic liberalization and reforms, there is no assurance that such policies will persist. Any political or regulatory instability could slow reform momentum, impact sector-specific policies—such as those governing personal care, healthcare products, or foreign investment—and adversely affect our business, financial condition, and future prospects. A shift in government policy or enforcement, particularly in areas of product regulation, environmental standards, or consumer safety, could also negatively impact our operations and the value of our Equity Shares.

g) Risk arising from changes in interest rates and banking policies:

Increased interest rates will have a bearing on profitability and credit controls will have an effect on our liquidity and will have serious effect on adequate working capital requirements.

The above risks and uncertainties include but are not limited to risks and uncertainties relating to dependencies on few customers and suppliers, changes in the regulatory framework, adverse development in the any of the customer industries to whom substantial part of the product is given, downgrading of credit worthiness, political instability, legal restrictions and general economic conditions affecting the industry.
